Conditions or Terms of Supervision with Consent of the Offender

CAUSE

Since the commencement of the probationer's supervision, she has either had sporadic jobs and/or collected public assistance to support herself and her young daughter. Due to this financial instability, the probationer did not make restitution payments. She has paid a total of $250 toward her restitution. In March 2006, the probationer secured full-time employment with Party City on Staten Island, New York as the store manager and resumed payments towards her restitution, leaving a balance of $1247.64. The probationer has agreed to this extension and has executed a waiver of hearing. She feels confident that she will be able to satisfy the outstanding balance by September 2006. The probationer is scheduled to terminate supervision on June 15, 2006. A copy of the Probation Form 49 is included for the Court's review.

Respectfully submitted by,

Gwendolyn Munley
Senior U.S. Probation Officer
